Catching Cold.

This reminds us of the conundrum, "say Jonnie! which travels the faster, heat or cold?" "Heat," says Jonnie, for you catch cold. Some persons are always on the look out to "do" the doctor, and get a free prescription out of him by stopping him on the highway or in some public place and asking his advice in regard to some trivial ailment. Old Dr. Bowling was driving along the village street one day; a man rushed out to him and stopping him said, "say Doctor? What's good for a bad cold?" The Doctor replied, "soak your feet in cold water and sit in a draught, what do you want to get a bad cold for any way?" With a crack of his whip he said, get up Bolus and drove along leaving his questioner to his own reflections. Personally, we have been frequently annoyed by such questions. If you wish the advice of a physician you should see him privately and at the proper time and place. Young girls, wishing to "appear smart" in the company of other girls and men, will sometimes ask a doctor a question concerning themselves, and at the same time would blush and hide their faces were the doctor to answer them truthfully and in "plain English."

Winter will soon be going and yet April, especially in more northern latitudes, is the worst month in the year for colds, bronchitis and pneumonia and we think a few timely suggestions will not be out of place. Avoid draughts, as this is the most fruitful source for "catching cold." The practice of standing in the doorway when taking leave of your friends is often responsible for a bad cold. Many persons think it is ill-bred to rush out from the house as soon as the door is opened and always have their "bon mots" left to say at this time. It is not ill-mannered in the least—for she shows care and concern for the health of her guests—for the hostess to say "step inside until you have finished speaking for I am afraid you will catch cold." With this gentle reminder your friends will soon be "educated up" to the proper manner of leaving a house without endangering their own and their hostess' lives. While we are on this subject we cannot forbear to digress a little and say that comparatively few people know how and when to take their leave from company, gracefully. Be the hour early or late "they sit and they set and they set," forgetting that the object of a visit is for bright, sparkling, jovial conversation with friends and that when conversation begins to lag and when they have to take hold of the seats of their chairs and pull with all their might to extract an idea, they may well know that that is the best time to go. We have seen cultured people, recent in their dispositions, sit seemingly in mortal agony and yet could not make up their minds to go. It would have greatly relieved their embarrassment as well as that of their host or hostess for them to arise, make some pleasant allusion to the events of the hour and saying, we will not longer detain you; then "stand not long on the order of their going." We have alluded to this for the reason that we believe that the same hesitation at leaving, often detains them at the open door.

Mothers, on account of their over-anxiety for their children, in spite of their judgment, will keep them too warm, so that when they go out of doors they almost necessarily "catch cold." The temperature of the living room should rarely exceed seventy degrees and the sleeping rooms should be well ventilated and should not exceed fifty degrees in temperature. The practice of wearing very heavy underclothing, predisposes to "catching cold;" underclothing should be of light or medium weight so as not to cause perspiration when in doors and upon going out, heavy outer garments suitable to the weather should be worn. The practice of coddling, muffling and bundling, should never be tolerated.

We have, previously, recommended the cold sponge bath the first thing in the morning as a preventive of colds, and if mothers would bathe the throats and necks of their children with cold water and then dry them properly and not muffle them up so tightly that they can scarcely breathe when they take them out, they would find that they would grow healthier and stronger and much less predisposed to throat troubles. Children treated as above can go out almost regardless of the weather, and not "catch cold."

If you want to have your children strong and healthy and rob the doctor of his fee, just try this plan of letting them live out doors as much as conditions will permit. There is a custom which prevails all over the land, that is so fraught with disease and death, that we could speak against it with such emphasis and power that it could be heard at every grave side where the custom is tolerated.

We refer to the custom of standing uncovered by the open grave in very severe or inclement weather. We know and probably every reader knows of instances in which disease, followed by death, was contracted in this way. Like many of our customs, it is more for the eyes of the living—for certainty it can do the dead no good, and why should we sacrifice our health and our lives in order to show honor for the dead and sympathy for the living, when we can do the same thing in scores of better and more acceptable ways without such sacrifice. We have attended funerals where the officiating clergyman had the good sense to tell the men to keep their hats on and caution the ladies about standing on the damp ground, giving the more delicate an opportunity to retire their carriages. We commend his example to the entire "brotherhood."

SI HUBBARD AT ROCKBRIDGE

Well Received by His Old Friends and Is Very Successful.

EDITOR DEMOCRAT-SENTINEL:—

About one year ago I first visited Rockbridge in the interest of your valuable paper. Since that time there has been some very considerable changes, some have moved out and some have moved in, and I thought it would redound to the credit of the paper to again visit that pleasant and hospitable little village, which I recently did. I arrived on the 7 a. m. north bound train on a bright and lovely Monday morning. I found the same old depot, the same old river bridge, the same old mail carrier, and upon close examination, found the sun rose in the same old place it did a year ago. But, alas! There was no River Dupler, no coon dog and no reception committee to greet me. I was sorely disappointed and much grieved, and in a very dejected, listless way I wended my way to the capital building of the city, recently and very appropriately called "Sunshine Corner," Stoughton and Mathias, place of business. The hour was eight and the sun was "unusually" bright and strong. There was an immense throng of people congregated there, bunched up in a dozen groups. I began to brighten up, things looked some different, and right then and there it occurred to me that by some oversight or other the people had not got the new telegraphed ahead that I would be there on a special train, in time enough to greet me at the depot, and had decided to meet and welcome me at "Sunshine Corner." That conclusion seemed so reasonable to me that I felt like rejoicing, my head went up, my shoulders back and it was just about all I could do to keep my heart from jumping out of my mouth. It took a mighty, a heroic effort, but I conquered, and am now pleased to state that I am carrying that same old heart in that same old place and the same old way, at the present time. The people were not gathered together for the purpose of giving me a royal reception, not gathered together for the purpose of discussing public affairs, the building of pikes or county local option, but to more fully investigate that, from the beginning, most popular, exciting and enticing game—MARLBLES. It was a game of the mighty. There was "Prophet" McConnell, "Peggy" Smith, "Ikey" Troxel, "Slippery" Wharton, "Squab" Wear, "Deacon" Mathias "Jockey" Woltz, "Mogan" Stoughton and "Farmer" Goss, experts of national reputation, and a lot of lesser lights of local reputation but so proficient as to cause considerable anxiety, in the contest for the prizes. The truant officer, under the direction of Superintendent Huls, stood by to see fair play, also to see that the contest should close promptly at the ring of the first school bell. The game was fast and furious. It was "Fendulub," "huckle down," "horences" "no hunchin'" from every quarter until the first tap of the school bell, when the truant officer stepped in and broke up the game. Immediately after the game, Prophet McConnell prophesied "rain tonight—a strong south wind makes it a certainty." Peggy Smith broke for his shop to mend several pairs of shoes that had been left several days previous. Ikey Troxel purchased a couple of buckets of paint to finish up his barn—St. Patrick green, Slippery Wharton and Farmer Goss started for the farm to gather up a bunch of cows sold to Charley Troxel, and, incidentally to smuggle in a dozen or so weathers, Squab Wear broke for the post office to get the south bound mail, Deacon Mathias and Mogan Stoughton rushed into the store to wait on a crowd of customers that were becoming impatient to get their goods and get home to work, and Jockey Woltz broke for the river bottoms, where it was said, a dead horse was recently buried, to capture the tail which he very much needed in his business, as he expected to go to Lancaster on a trading trip in the near future. Being left alone I hid myself to the home of Captain Huls, where I succeeded in getting my name in the dinner pot, and at the dinner hour this timely thought no doubt, saved my life; at any rate, I was considerably refreshed. My courage went up with my head, my shoulders went back and I went forward to do or die, and I did. My success was phenomenal, my appetite was as ravenous as my success phenomenal, and I am pleased to say that the DEMOCRAT-SENTINEL has more readers it Rockbridge than all the other papers published in the county combined.

During my canvass in this pleasant little city I took occasion to take the census. I found 103 males and 108 females, a total of 331.

The Rockbridge schools are prospering as they never did before. C. B. Huls, of Rockbridge, has charge of the grammar school, Miss Della Gordon, of Logan, has charge of the Intermediate. Miss Clara Rulon, of Logan, has charge of the Primary department. It is due to the very excellent services of these teachers that the schools are what they are, a pride to Good-hope township.

The question of a principal or a superintendent of the schools is being very generally discussed. It is thought by many that the schools should not only be graded and that a superintendent should be placed over all. It is alleged that in the lower branches some of the larger boys become unruly, unmanageable, that the lady teachers in many instances have been unable to control them. This, it is claimed, has a tendency to demoralize the school and create disrespect in the younger minds. And they are right. The first thing to be taught is obedience. And the teacher should be physically able to enforce obedience when it becomes necessary. Wherein the teachers physically lack it is well that the scholars are made to understand that there is a superintendent over them that is physically able to enforce the rules and have good order. By all means grade your schools.

Place over them a superintendent, a man competent, and one that will command obedience, and you will see a wonderful change for the better.

Miss Dossie Davey, of Logan, is teaching a very successful seven months term in district No. 2, ("Troxel School.") Goodhope township. Miss Davey is a pleasant, agreeable and efficient teacher and is giving excellent satisfaction. Taking it all in all she is very pleasantly situated, as are the other two Logan teachers at Rockbridge. They ride the morning train up to Rockbridge and take the evening train back, spending their nights at home.

F. E. Comstock is the same pleasant, genial merchant as of yore. Notwithstanding the dull times is enjoying as good, if not a better business, than a year ago. Frank never lets his stock run down. He has everything to be found in a first class general store. His prices are reasonable.

There is a brand new dressmaker in Rockbridge. She came Monday, March 16, and to Dr. Lee is due her safe arrival. Papa McCarley, the popular tonsorial artist, is the proudest man in town, he's all smiles and says, "It's just what I wanted. My wife will not be lonesome now." We wish the new dressmaker a very happy and prosperous life.

After I had completed Rockbridge, I dropped down to Enterprise. I did well. Out of the fifteen families in Enterprise thirteen homes. This looks good to me. In soliciting the town I took occasion to take the census. There were 43 males and 36 females, a total of 79.

I visited Kline Brothers general store. I met the boys and had a very pleasant time. I have wondered since how it would be possible to visit Enterprise and not recognize the Kline boys. They are very much in evidence in every public enterprise. They are genial, social and accommodating and always extend a hearty welcome. Kline Brothers general store is one of the most colossal in Southern Ohio. They have anything you want from a cambric needle to a harvester and binder. You will have to see to appreciate; I am unable to properly describe their stock. In my ramble through the buildings I discovered farm implements and machinery of every description, hardware, tinware, wire fencing, fertilizer and an immense stock of dry goods, notions and groceries. They buy, sell and ship country produce of all kinds. Their huxter wagon is almost as large as a passenger coach and is a circulating general store. The Kline boys are the most active, enterprising and aggressive business men in Hocking County. They are square-dealers and great advertisers and deserve the wonderful success they are having.

The Antioch U. B. Church, at Enterprise, is having a revival. The new minister, Rev. M. R. White, is a young man, active and vigorous, a very forcible and eloquent speaker. The revival, now just getting under way, promises to be very effectual. Rev. White is assisted by Rev. J. B. Mathias, presiding elder of the Portsmouth District, and Rev. C. C. Alton, of Mowrystown, Ohio. These latter ministers are well known all over Ohio, are very able and unusually eloquent, convincing orators, necessarily the prospects for a great revival are exceptionally flattering.

In my canvass in Rockbridge and Enterprise and in adjacent territory, I succeeded in getting 32 new ones. W. B. Rudolph, Philip Dupler, Goss Inboden, Llewellyn F. Hansley, Wm. Groves, Lias Conrad, D. D. Goss, Chance Viero, S. H. Mathias, L. S. Mathias, Naomi Miller, L. C. Beougher, Shady Voris, Clint White, Vernon Dupler, Margaret Hamblin, John McCarley, Sherman Scepter, Cliff Wharton, Catharine Bailey, Charles Drake, F. M. Huls, H. C. Tucker, I. J. Mathias, Frank Edwards, Wm. D. Beougher, James Burgoon, Benj. Woods, J. F. Swartz, Fred Ellinger, Vinton Carpenter and John H. Blosser.

IT SAVED MY LIFE—WRITES ECZEMA PATIENT.

One of the most remarkable Eczema cures recently credited to the well known D. D. D. Prescription has just been recorded in Chicago.

Mrs. E. Hegg, 1550 West Madison street, under date of Dec. 9, 1907, writes as follows:

"I suffered three years with Weeping Eczema. It started with a little spot on my knees and spread fast over my whole body. I spent hundreds of dollars and went to every good doctor I heard of, but kept getting worse. Nothing would stop the awful itch and burning.

"I had to stay in bed from the middle of May to the middle of July. Then I tried D. D. D. Prescription. This is the 9th of December and I am entirely free from the terrible disease. D. D. D. saved my life.

"When I began this treatment, people were afraid of me I looked so terrible. My husband was the only one who would take care of me. D. D. D. stopped the itch at once so I could sleep, which I had not done before. Then I began to get better fast and now my skin is clear and white, not a spot anywhere."

Just a few drops of D. D. D. Prescription applied to the skin brings relief—nothing to swallow or drink. We vouch for D. D. D. Prescription, also the cleansing D. D. D. Soap, BORT & CO., Logan, O. Get a bottle today if you have any skin disease. Begin your cure at once.
